Mr. and Mrs. M. Murray were down from Calgary to spend the 24th with friends.

A whist drive will be given in the Drug Store Pavilion at Cluny on Friday, June 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Landels have returned from Vancouver after an absence of several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown are happy over the arrival of a daughter at their home on Tuesday, May 18.

Henry Willard is the happy father of twins, who arrived at his home on Saturday, May 22nd—a boy and girl. Mrs. Willard is doing nicely.

O. Desjardins returned Sunday from spending two weeks in a Calgary hospital, where he was operated on for appendicitis. He is recovering nicely.

Jas. Leggett was here from Drumheller last week for a couple of days. His many friends were glad to see him looking so well as he has been dangerously ill since his previous illness to Gleichen.

A dance is to be given in the Gleichen Opera House on Friday, June 4th. The Gleichen Orchestra has been engaged for the occasion and there will be some special features all will be interested in.

A. Jena has started a butcher shop and purchased a heavy and dry business at Hesser. He will move his family there this week. We expect "Shanty" will be mayor of this thriving new town within a few months.

A. McIvor, manager of the Bank of Hamilton at Milo, spent a day in Gleichen last week. He was accompanied by Mrs. L. Asquith and Mrs. Stewart. The former has since left to join his father in the States.

Word was received that Jacob Roache died at Vancouver Saturday. That night his two sons and daughter, Mrs. O. Desjardins, left for that city, where they arrived. It was the intention to take the remains to Utah for burial, their former home. Until the return full information is only available.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dufas left on Sunday for Clarksburg where Mr. Dufas has taken the management of a ranch. They will be greatly missed from Gleichen, and their position here has most successfully filled for a number of years.

Last week we said Mr. McKewen was the oldest man in town, which was a mistake. Mr. John Finnigan reached 74 years last Sunday and Mr. Jay Jumps is just 73. All three look good for a number of years of active life yet. All will join us in extending congratulations to these gentlemen. We would give a fair race for these gentlemen be fests of the Fair.

Another week of good seedling seedling wheat has passed and it is completed for the big majority.

Gleichen Sports Day Thursday, June 10

Gleichen District Agricultural Association Will Hold Outdoor Sports and Dance in Opera House

One Day of Old-Fashion Fun

Friday night of last week a most enthusiastic meeting was held of the Sports Committee of the Gleichen District Agricultural Association, when the program for the Day of Sports to be held on Thursday, June 10th, was thoroughly discussed and the different items settled upon, and several sub-committees appointed.

The success of Victoria Day sports last year being mentioned it was decided that as nearly as possible that program would be followed again, and a right old-fashion day of fun for every person will be arranged, of which the following is the outline:

Senior Baseball Match
Athletic Sports by School Children.
Junior Baseball Match
Half-Mile Indian Race	5 00	$ 3 00
Five-Eighth-Mile Indian Race	5 00	3 00
Half-Mile Indian Race	5 00	3 00
Quarter-Mile Boys Pony Race	10 00	5 00
Half-Mile Boys Pony Race	10 00	5 00
Half-Mile Saddle Horse Race	15 00	10 00
Quarter-Mile Saddle Horse Race	10 00	5 00
Cow Horse Turning Race	15 00	10 00
Slow Horse Race	15 00	10 00

As usual the Gleichen Citizen Band will be on hand to cheer up the crowd. Their ability is known and they have steadily improved.

That evening there will be moving pictures and other special attractions, followed by a big dance in the Opera House. It is the object of the committee to have something of interest to all at night as well as throughout the day.

The School sports held last Friday afternoon proved very successful although the high wind kept many away who otherwise would have been present. Nevertheless, the entire program was carried out and the boys and girls put on an excellent entertainment consisting of a variety of sports, not forgetting the fine cooking supplied by the ladies. We had hoped to receive a list of the prize winners but may for next issue.

On Friday last, May 21st, Chris. Baruch brought to The Call office a sample of his sister's green grass that measured over 12 inches in height. Mr. Baruch has 165 acres of this growing on his farm adjoining Gleichen on the north-west, land which many a man prides by only to now learn of its high value. This is a volunteer crop and was completely lost last year when the original crop was cut. Mr. Baruch has certainly shown the wealth of feed and grain that can be obtained in this district in winter years and will have some seventeen hundred bushels of seed rice on hand from last year. At his south farm he has 200 acres. He is also coming up in fine shape.

Last Wednesday afternoon was a busy time in Gleichen, and as a result several Indians each $5 and $4 cost for embarking Florida water and extracts. Two Chung Chinamen supplied the fire water and John Kee was assessed $100 on a list of cash had a choice of sixty dollars. Louis Hong was fined $200 on one charge and given sixty days of work on another. As we have remarked before many times it is the length of folly to sell on give. Fire water to Indians and before now has had a fatal result.

Does it pay to advertise? W. M. Lytle informs us that his brother has been getting more calls for pure bred R. R. Rhode Island eggs than they can supply.

ARROWWOOD NEWS

The next meeting of the Arrowwood P.E.A. is to be held Friday evening, June 4th. Important business is to take place, including the election of the following officers to complete the executive body of the local: vice-president and a board of five directors. The committee composed of M. C. Miller, F. S. Foltz and P. M. Norton is to report on their visit at the municipal council and the committee, L. S. Shatto, H. C. Allan and P. M. Norton, who were to see after the improvement of the grade will report their success. L. S. Shatto is to give a report of the U. P. A. convention. It is expected that the local will pass a resolution to purchase a moving picture machine at this meeting.

To the complete surprise of the entire community, one of Arrowwood's young farmers, Jack Beagle, was united in marriage to Miss L. C. Colby, also of Arrowwood, on Wednesday, May 13th. The ceremony was officiated by T. A. Eismann at Mr. Eismann's home. Although Jack invited all the young people of the community to his home on Thursday to a party his friends did not "catch on." It was a happy crowd that offered sincere congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Beagle. A most enjoyable evening followed and to the occasion a most delicious three-course luncheon was served. Showing the good sportsmanship, Jack passed a box of cigars to the young men to which they reacted to his health and prosperity. Congratulations to you, Mr. and Mrs. Beagle and may this occasion mean a happy and prosperous life.

"Then there is the suffering," she continued, after a pause. "I don't know why there should be suffering, but I know if there were no suffering there would be no kindness. It is not until you are hit—hard hit—that you begin to think of other people. Until then all is selfishness. But we women—we women of the war—we have nothing left to be selfish for. But we have the whole world to be selfish for. It's all different, and it can never go back. We won't let it go back. We've paid too much to let it go back."

"It was hard to find a reply. 'I think I knew your husband, a little,' I ventured. 'He was a—a man.' 'He was all that,' she said. She arose and stood for a moment in an attitude of hesitation; her fingers went to her lips as though enjoining caution. Then, with quick decision, she went into an inner room, from which she returned with a letter."

"If you knew him you may care to read this," she said. "It's very personal, and yet, some way, everything is impersonal now, in a sense. There has been such a common cause, and such a wave of common suffering, that it seems to flood out over the individual and embrace us all. Individualism is gone. It's the community now; the state; mankind, if you like, above everything. I suppose, so far as German Kultur stands for that, it has been imposed upon the world. . . . So is this really, in a sense, your letter as well as mine."

I took it and read: I have had many letters to write since my service began as a nurse in the war, but never have I approached the task with such mixed emotions. The pain I must give you I would gladly bear myself if I could; but it is not all pain; underneath it, running through it in some way I cannot explain, is a note so much deeper than pain that it must be joy.

You will already have been advised that David Elden was among those who fell at Courcellette. It is true to say you have the sympathy of a grateful nation. How grateful the nation really is we shall know by its treatment of the heroes who survive the war, and of the dependents of those who have crossed over. But nothing can rob you of the knowledge that he played a man's part. Nothing can debar you from that universal fellowship of sympathy which is springing up wherever manhood is valued at its worth.

A new Order has been born into the world; the Order of Suffering. Not that it is new, either; it has been with us since the first mother went into the shadow for her first child; but always suffering has been incidental; a matter of the individual; a thing to be escaped if possible. But now it is universal, a thing not to be escaped, but to be accepted, readily, bravely, even gladly. And all who so accept it enter in the new Order, and wear its insignia, which is unselfishness and sympathy and service. And in that order you shall not be least, measured by either your sacrifice or the spirit in which you accept it.

But you are yearning for his last word; for some voice that will seem to you now almost a voice from the grave, and I am happy to be able to bring you that word. It was something more than chance guiding me that night, as it is every night.

We were well behind the line of actual fighting, but still in the danger zone of artillery fire. Night had settled in; all was darkness save for occasional distant flares. I had become detached from my party in moving to another station; lost, if you like, yet not lost; never have I gone so directly to so great a destination. While trying to get my location I became aware of a presence; it will sound strange to you, but I became intensely aware of your presence. Of course I knew it could not be you, in the flesh, but you it seemed to me, nevertheless. I moved as though led by an invisible hand, and presently I found a bit of shattered wall. I looked in it could just discern the form of a man lying in the shelter of the wall—if you could call it shelter—it rose scarce a foot above the ground.

I knelt beside him and turned my torch onto his face. It was pale even through the brown skin; the eyes were closed; the hair was wet and was plastered on the forehead; there were smears of blood on it and on his cheeks. As my light fell on his lips they framed a smile.

"Reenie," he said. "It was good of you to come."

"I am here, Dave," I answered, and I think you will forgive me the impersonation. "Now let me find out just where you are hurt, and we'll fix you up, and get you moved presently."

He opened his eyes and looked at me with the strange look of a man whose thread of consciousness is half untraveled. "Oh, it's you, Edith," he said, when he had taken me in. "Funny, I thought it was Irene. I must have been dreaming."

I questioned him again about his wound, and began feeling his hair. "It's not there," he said. "Guess I got it all over my hands. They got me this time. Shrapnel in the body. Don't waste time on me. Some other fellow may have a chance."

I found, with a little examination, that the case was as bad as he had supposed. Fortunately the wound had induced a local paralysis, and he was not suffering to any great degree. I placed my hand in his and felt his grip tighten on it.

"I'm going to stay 'till it's over, Dave. We'll see it out together."

"That's decent," he answered, and then was still quite a time.

"I've often wondered what was on the other side," he said at length. "I shall know presently."

"You are not afraid?" I whispered.

"No. Only sort of—curious. And—reverent. I guess it's reverent."

You now I haven't been much on religion. Never seemed to get the formula. What is the formula? I mean the key—the thing that gives it all in one word?"

"In one word—sacrifice."

"I walked out of church once because of some doctrine about sacrifice," he continued. "I couldn't go it. . . . And yet—there may be something in it. It's sacrifice here, Edith. War is sacrifice. Sacrifice for other people. It's not all on the surface. There's something deeper than we know."

"He that loseth his life shall find it," I quoted.

He did not answer, but I could see his lips smiling again. His breath was more labored. A few drops of rain fell, and some of them splattered on his face.

Presently he chuckled. It was an eerie sensation, out on that broad plain of death, alone by the side of this man who was already far into the shadow—to hear him chuckle.

"That splash of water—you remember—it made me think of the time we pulled the old car into the stream, and the harness broke, or something, and I had to carry you. You remember that Reenie?" he could only say "Yes," and press his hand. His mind was back on the old, old trails.

He became suddenly sober. "And when Brownie was killed," he went on, "I said it was the innocent thing, that got caught. Perhaps I was right. But perhaps it's best to be caught. Not for the getting caught, but for the—the compensations. It's the innocent men that are getting killed. And perhaps it's best. Perhaps there are compensations worth while."

His voice was weaker, and I had to lean close to catch his words.

"I'm going—out," he said. "Kiss me Reenie."

And then I kissed him—for you. Suddenly he sat up.

"The mountains!" he exclaimed, and his voice was a thrill with the pride of his old hills. "See the moon-light—on the mountains!"

Then his strength, which seemed to have gathered itself for this one last vision of the place of his boyhood, failed, and he fell back. And he did not speak any more.

And what can I add? Dear, it is not defeat. It is promise. It is hope. Some day we shall know. But until then we shall go on. It is woman's lot to carry on. But not in despondency; not in bitterness; not in anger or despair. He didn't go out that way. He was reverent—and a little curious, and he went out with a smile. And we shall go on, and carry his smile and his confidence through the valley of our sacrifice. What am I doing, speaking of our sacrifice? I salute you, sister in the Order of Suffering—and of Hope.

Edith Duncan. I handed the letter back to her and for a time I had no words. "Won't you let me tell the story?" I said at length. "The world is full of sorrow, and it needs voices to give that sorrow words, and perhaps turn it into hope—as this letter does."

She hesitated, and I realized then how much I had asked. "It is the story of my life—my soul," she said. "Yet, if it would help—"

"Without names," I hastened to explain. "Without real names of places or people."

And so, in that little white-washed home, where the brown hills rise around and the placid mountains look down from the distance, and a tongue of spruce trees beyond the stream stands sentinel against the open prairie, she is carrying on, not in despondency or bitterness, but in service and in hope. And so her sisters, all this world over, must carry on, until their sweetness and their sacrifice shall fill up and flood over all the valleys of hate.

And if you should chance that way, and if you should win the confidence of young three-year-olds, he may stand for you and say, with his voice filled with the honor and the glory and the pride of it.

"My father was a soldier. He was killed at Courcellette."

A Famous Motor Boat

Attains A Speed of Forty Knots With Full Armament and Crew

At the recent motor boat exhibition in London, England, the most attractive exhibit was the famous coastal motor boat C.M.B.4, from the Baltic after many cruises, during which she passed through lines of forts and torpedoed the Bolshevik cruiser Oleg. This vessel is a skimmer or hydroplane of the type invented before the war for sporting purposes. It attains a speed of 40 knots with full armament and crew. The show contained many British examples of small auxiliary motors, which can be attached to rowing boats and other small craft. Some of these are installed on board and others are attached to the stern without structural alterations. One pattern, with an engine rated at 2 to 3 horse power, weighs only 60 lbs. complete with propeller and steering gear.

ERNEST SMITH TALKS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Quebec Man Grateful for the Benefit He Has Received, Pays Tribute to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Grand Pabos, West Quebec, May 17th.—(Special).—Mr. Ernest Smith, a highly-respected resident here, is one of the many who have abiding faith in Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for sick kidneys.

"I have suffered from my kidneys," Mr. Smith says, "and I read that Dodd's Kidney Pills were good, so I tried them. They have helped me so much that I will continue to use them when my kidneys trouble me."

The kidneys require constant attention if good health is to be maintained, and serious disease is averted. The kidneys perform a most important work in the human system. They strain all the impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood. When they are weak and unable to do their work the system clogs and sickness is the inevitable result.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the best remedy for weak, disordered or diseased kidneys.

Historic Firth of Forth

Within Great Expanse Whole Fleets May Ride at Anchor

The Firth of Forth is, of course, one of the most notable things in all Scotland. From Kincardine, where it officially begins, to that imaginary line just west of the Isle of May, from the East Neuk of Fife to the mouth of the Tyne, in Haddingtonshire, where it officially ends is a distance of 48 miles; while from shore to shore the expanse of water measures anything from one and a half miles, at Queensferry, to seventeen and a half miles off the Isle of May. Within this great expanse of water whole fleets may ride at anchor in perfect safety, and although little is known of the great scenes which must have taken place in these waters during the last four years, the story of the Firth of Forth during the great war, culminating as it did recently in the surrender there of the German high seas fleet, will not be the least interesting of the many stories which still remain to be written.

Fire Prevention Campaign Among Farmers

Saskatchewan Fire Commissioner Issues Special Instructions For Farm Houses

A special appeal is being made by Arthur E. Fisher, fire commissioner for Saskatchewan, to the farmers of the province to assist in reducing the fire losses by observing the spring cleanup movement. — These suggestions will apply to the West generally.

"There is no class of people to whom fire prevention should appeal more than the farmers, who carry losses in mutual companies, as their premium notes are assessed in direct proportion to the losses sustained by the company," said Mr. Fisher. "In brief," he added, "the smaller the losses the less money they will be obliged to pay under the mutual system to indemnify those who have suffered losses."

Mr. Fisher announced the following as urgent suggestions which would appeal particularly to the farmers: The barn is no place for the automobile. Build a garage.

Conserve your water supply. You may have drought or fire and need the surplus.

A pipe, cigar or cigarette has no place in the barn. Neither have greasy rags nor old coats with matches in the pockets.

Buy a fire extinguisher, but place it where you can get at it in case of fire, and see that it is frequently inspected.

Have two ladders long enough to reach the eaves of your tallest building.

Keep gasoline away from buildings and preferably underground.

Four ounces of common baking soda per gallon of water makes a splendid fire extinguisher. Four ounces of salt per gallon will keep water barrels from freezing except in extreme weather.

Keep your eye open for spontaneous combustion fires in wet grain, feed or hay.

Do not stack so that a fire will spread to your buildings. Keep straw and hay, etc., at a safe distance.

Allow no weeds or grass to grow about the buildings.

Put up "no smoking" signs about the barns and other buildings. We can supply you for nothing. Write for them.

Keep your matches in a metal box away from children.

Examine chimneys and stoves frequently.

Most losses on farm property are due to these causes, given alphabetically: adjoining buildings, ashes, children, defective flues and fire places, stoves and stove pipes, lamps, lighting, matches, rubbish and sparks. Carelessness figures in all.

Watches vary, but the average number of different parts is said to be 175. To manufacture a watch it has been estimated involves no less than 2,100 separate and distinct operations.

China is Land Of Contrasts

Appalling Extent of Human Suffering Through the Lack Of Knowledge

(By Dr. Chas. W. Service, Chengtu, West China.)

China is a land of possibilities undeveloped but unbounded. She is a land of mighty reserve power, but this power, like that of her physical resources, her numerous supply of mineral deposits, has remained dormant. But she is awakening. "When China is moved it will change the face of the globe."

A superficial comparison of the social and other conditions of China with those of India might suggest a close parallel. Both have dense and numerous populations exhibiting the lowest depths of poverty. Both are deeply tainted with conditions fatal to human health and life, conditions induced by age-long ignorance of public and private cleanliness and hygiene—hence, both are cursed with leprosy, leathome diseases of the skin and eyes. In both the masses of the population are illiterate. Both are idolatrous, priest-ridden. In both women are inferior and are miserably handicapped in the race of life. The treatment of disease is desperately evil, being controlled by gross superstition and ignorance. The resemblance, obvious, but superficial, fades when we recognize certain fundamental facts.

While India shows the enervation of a tropical land, China has the energy of a colder climate. The Chinese retain a firmness of fibre, a native intelligence, a strong contrast to the apathy of the Hindus. In China the inferiority of the women does not rest upon an unchangeable religious code, but on a flexible custom. The women of China are by no means decadent or passive.

While India's progress is paralyzed by caste, China has no such handicap, for the Chinese are the most democratic of people. The only aristocracy is that of learning. Idolatry, while prevalent in China, is less gross, unclean, multifarious and lascivious than in India.

A strong point of promise for the future of China is found in her native inventive intelligence and her ingenuity, and in the fact of the adaptability of her people to any environment. Civil engineers state that in less than fifty years after keen young Chinese have had access to technical schools of grade like our own, there will be no place in the engineering work of the Far East for the white expert. An aviation instructor recently said that while the Japanese are hopeless as airmen, the Chinese will make the best. In spite of the Chinese wall of inherited conservatism, in spite of the worst of conditions of human life, there is promise of the dawn of a new day for China.

While China has many strong links in her chain of strength, there is one, among others, still lacking, namely, public health. Dr. Edwards, on his return from a visit to China in the interest of a scheme for establishing a Harvard medical school at some centre in China, issued a report in which he sought to make clear the medical needs of China. He says in substance: "Imagine the United States with its splendid institutions for the preservation and betterment of public health. Now in order to get a real conception of what China is we shall begin a process of elimination. First, we will take out of our country all the hospitals save 250; next take away every infant's hospital and every hospital that is given to taking care of the mother in her hour of need; next we must close the greater number of dispensaries for our poor people and leave them without care; then dismiss from every city the boards of health; the sewers must be filled up and all the various institutions that serve to preserve good healthful conditions for the people must be closed. Now, it seems as though that is enough to take away from our country, but we will have to do more yet. All our medical schools save a few, and those recently established, must disappear. Further, take away from our people all the scientific knowledge of how disease is caused and how it is transmitted. Then take our forlorn country and pack it full of tuberculosis, leave no city without small-pox, and scatter everywhere the other diseases which we have in greater or lesser extent, then add the bubonic plague in the south, and the pneumonic plague in the north, and cholera in vast areas then all over our stricken country you must spread the loathsome leprosy; and when all that has been done summon just four times as many people, all of whom desire just as much as we to be well and strong, and whose hearts love and suffer and break even as ours, and then say 'Here's where you must live!' and that is a bird's-eye view of China."

As we view the appalling extent of human suffering, the question of Chinese remedial measures, the native practices of medicine and surgery naturally confronts us. Here we pause, unwilling to enter far into a chamber of horrors which can only inspire us with repulsion and turn sympathy into despair. Moreover, superstition and ignorance add to the appeal of woe. Nauseous concoctions of snakes' skins, tigers' claws, etc., and unnameable remedies of many kinds, cruel needlings, and canterizations the opium evil and other vices add to the picture of horror, and one wonders how China can ever pass out of her night into the light of a better day. But when we look into the medical work of Christian missionaries we shall be convinced that ignorance and superstition have done their worst and that there is in China, as in other lands, the dawn of a better day.

Concealed Seven German Stowaways

Hoped to Bring Wives Out Later; Will Probably Be Deported

Seven stowaways who arrived recently in New York by the Red Star liner Finland, and were not discovered until the steamship was nearing quarantine awakened in the soul of her skipper, Capt. Newman, a fervent desire to know how it was possible for the seven to conceal themselves so effectually on a fourteen day trip from Antwerp, where they came aboard. The immigration inspectors also want to know the facts of the unusual case and started an investigation in conjunction with the skipper. All seven stowaways are Jews from Russian Poland, and are equipped with German passports. Under a grilling they admitted they had paid 1,340 francs to three steersman stewards who passed them into the ship at Antwerp.

The ages of the seven range from 21 to 37. Two are bakers, one is a painter and one, Solomon Marco, a furrier, said he went from Siberia to Germany and had suffered many hardships. Three are married and said they left their wives in Germany, hoping to send for them later. They pointed out the stewards, who will be held aboard the liner until acting Commissioner of Immigration Byron H. Uhl shall decide what to do with them. The stowaways were taken to Ellis Island, and will probably be ordered deported.

Waited too Long

"Where are you going?" the dentist asked a man who started to leave the waiting-room. "I've been here 45 minutes for you to pull a tooth for me." "Well, I'm ready for you now, step in the waiting-room." "I'm not ready for you now doc. When I first came in here I was chock full of doughboy courage, but every second some of it oozed away, and now I guess I must feel about the same way a German in a dugout felt just after he had shouted 'Kamerad!' and was not certain whether the answer would be a hand grenade or an order to march to the rear."

Guy Bates Post in "The Masquerader"

Coming to Calgary Grand May 27-28-29

Everyone who sees "The Masquerader" has an explanation of the tricks by which Guy Bates Post, who plays the dual role of John Chilote, and John Loder, appears to be in two places at the same time. Of course, the difficulties in playing the double part are great, just from the one standpoint of the sudden shifts in characterization, make-up and costume. But in addition, the play itself has put the star in a tight box on two special occasions in the play and it takes the audience several moments each time to recover from the shock of seeing him in the place where it does not seem normally possible for him to be.

The first of these occasions is during the scene in Lady Astor's garden. That suspicious host has discovered the seal on the hand of the man who is supposed to be Chilote, but who is in reality Loder. Spy talk is in the air and suspicion is at once aroused. Loder steps back in the alcove of the garden and by accident escapes at the same time that Chilote, impersonated a double of uncanny resemblance, appears. The crowd goes into the alcove and drags the latter through a gateway, only to discover that they are face to face with Post and not the substitute.

Another startling change occurs in the last act when Post as Loder leaves his rooms with the substitutes as Chilote lies asleep on the couch. A few moments later, when Chilote awakens, it is Post who is there to speak the lines.

"The Masquerader" will be at the Grand in Calgary on May 27-28-29. Reserve your seats now.

May Discuss Anglo-Japanese Alliance Question

London.—The question whether there is to be a continuance of the Anglo-Japanese alliance is being brought before the British public by the presence of W. A. Watt, treasurer of the Australian Commonwealth in England. Mr. Watt arrived in London this week and has given out a number of interviews in which he urged closer co-operation between Great Britain and her Dominions with regard to foreign policies, and emphasized Australia's determination to remain a "white man's country." At a dinner given in his honor which was attended by the Viscount Milner, secretary for the colonies, and numerous other men in public life, Mr. Watt in an address said:

"The dominant thought in our minds has been that in southwestern Asia live eight hundred million colored people, and the Australian people say that whatever can be done to keep our country for the British and their children should be done. We know that we could not repel an armed assault by the great yellow or the brown nations, but we believe that in the fulness of time the statesmen of the empire will understand our attitude and assist us to enforce it.

"If there are conversations in the near future between the empire of the Mikado and the British government, the Australian people want their views registered before the representative thinkers of the empire."

Premier Borden Returns

Has His Old Vigor and Declares He Is Now in Perfect Health

Ottawa.—Bronzed and, apparently in excellent health, Sir Robert Borden has arrived in Ottawa.

Sir Robert showed no traces of the illness which had necessitated his five months' holiday. He had the old vigor and to all queries he smilingly replied that his health was of the best. His arrival was the occasion of a celebration by his supporters. Headed by Sir George Foster and members of the cabinet, they gathered on the platform to welcome him back to Ottawa. As Sir Robert and Lady Borden stepped off the car there was a round of cheering. On the platform with the Unionists was Dr. Clark, member for Red Deer, and prominent in the National Progressive party. It was Dr. Clark's birthday. Sir Robert and he laughingly congratulated each other.

"You look younger than I do," Dr. Clark observed.

Report of Earnings and Expenses for Past Year Tabled in The House

Ottawa.—Gross earnings of the Canadian Northern railway for the year ended December 31, 1919, were $53,562,177.57, according to the fifth annual report of the directors tabled in the house by Hon. J. D. Reid, minister of railways.

These were derived as follows: From passenger traffic, $10,775,708.46; from freight traffic, $39,175,555.00; express, mail and telegraph, $1,538,902.18 miscellaneous, $3,337,014.81.

Mennonites Would Like to Stay

Reported to Have Asked Manitoba Government for Tract Of Land

Winnipeg, Man.—The Mennonite situation took a further new turn when it was learned that during the past few days, despite reports to the contrary, it has become evident that the Mennonites in Manitoba do not wish to leave the province, but would prefer to make a change in the location of their colony from the present well-settled district to some more remote portion.

They have asked the provincial government, it is stated, to go over the map of the province, and if a tract of country could be found where there were no settlers and where settlers would not go because of the rigorous climate, or the poorness of the land, to allow them to take it over with the privileges of education and religion which are denied them in their present location in southern Manitoba.

The Mennonites, it is declared, possibly have in mind the large tract of open country bordering on the Hudson's Bay. The provincial government, however, has not entertained for a moment any idea of such concessions.

Edmonton, Alta.—The distribution of seed grain for settlers' spring requirements throughout Alberta has now been completed, and the department of agriculture is calling in its field men. All the grain thus supplied for seeding purposes has been Alberta grown.

Sheriff Gets Ex-Kaiser

Imperial Throne and Trappings to be sold by Auction in New York

New York.—The Imperial German throne is to be sold here at auction. The goods of the former kaiser and kaiser and former members of the German Imperial family, seized from the Imperial palaces of Berlin and Munich, for unpaid bills after the emperor abdicated and went to Holland, will be sold under the hammer here May 22, at one of the city's largest art galleries, it was announced.

Sixty-five pieces are in the Imperial collection, which was brought here two weeks ago by the purchaser and importer, Valdemar Pevelson. He declared he had considerable difficulty in getting an export permit from the German government which was against this, but he had promised to buy food with the net profits for resale in Germany.

Authenticity of the art objects is vouched for by one of Berlin's most reputable art firms. Three complete salons with portraits embossed with German eagles, wall hangings, rugs made to order in the Orient for the former kaiser, and antiques which have belonged to the Imperial German and Bavarian families for centuries, are said to be included in the collection. These sets of furniture were in the collection, the throne of red plush, embroidered with Prussia eagles, also, are advertised for sale.

According to Mr. Pevelson, the ex-kaiser was not always prompt about paying his bills. Immediately upon his flight to Holland, patience was exhausted and creditors seized household belongings in payment for the accounts.

Lively Irish Meeting

Many Questions Were Asked Crawford and Irwin by Winnipeg G. W. V. A.

Winnipeg.—Lindsay Crawford, of Toronto, and the Rev. Dr. A. H. Irwin, Presbyterian minister of county Antrim, Ireland, addressed a meeting of between two and three thousand here on the Irish question, arguing in favor of self-determination. There were frequent interruptions, especially when the speakers touched upon what might be called modern aspects of the question, and at the conclusion they were peppered with questions until practically all the audience began to leave. There was nothing in the way of disorder, although if the police, six or seven of whom were present, had heeded the cries of the more vehement supporters of the visitors to throw the interrupters out, the operation might have been attended with more serious consequences as quite a few of them wore the button of the Great War Veterans' association. It was these who interjected the questions at Mr. Crawford, "Where were you in the war," and who asked, "Why did the south of Ireland supply gasoline to the German submarines in the war?"

Dr. Irwin denied the statement that he had been refused his passports by the British government and said he had come across the ocean for the benefit of his health. As he was here, he went on to say, he considered it his duty to explain the Irish situation.

Appeal Bill is Withdrawn

Hartley Dewar Condemns Bill as the First Thing to Disrupt British Empire

Toronto.—Hon. W. E. Rancey withdrew in the legislature his bill to abolish appeals to the privy council from Ontario.

He was asked by R. R. Hall, Party Sound, if he considered this a self-governed country when the highest court of appeal was in England.

"I think you will soon see the governor-general appointed on the nomination or recommendation of the privy council of Canada," he said.

H. H. Dewar condemned Mr. Rancey's bill as the first thing to disrupt the British Empire. The right of appeal is the most sacred possession of Canadian citizens and he challenged Mr. Rancey to show what right existed to take it away.

Mr. Rancey said the right to appeal from the Canadian criminal code had been taken away. Why not, then, the right to appeal in litigation.

Mr. Dewar said a former criminal lawyer had proven that criminal cases could be appealed to the privy council.

Sir Arthur Currie Appointed Principal Of McGill University

Montreal.—Lieut.-Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, who commanded the Canadian forces in Flanders, and who has been offered the post of principal of McGill University, has accepted the post.

Sir Arthur Currie is at present inspector-general of Canadian militia. The statement issued at McGill University is as follows:

The board of governors have appointed General Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., D.S.O., principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University.

In offering Sir Arthur Currie the principality of McGill, the governors were influenced by the conviction that the university needs at the present time, above all other things, a principal with exceptional powers of organization and administration and endowed with a tried capacity for inspiration and leadership. The sustained brilliancy of Sir Arthur Currie's record in the great war will always throw an added lustre upon the most glorious annals of our country.

His achievement as general commander of the Canadian army won him a reputation unsurpassed, if not unrivalled, by that of any general in the British forces.

"They were accomplished not alone by his skill as a soldier, but also by the patient, constructive and far-seeing qualities of a statesman with which he welded the Canadian units into an organization, which, we are proud to believe, was the best and

Dublin.—Fifty police barracks were destroyed in the raids on Wednesday night, according to an official statement issued from Dublin Castle today. Twenty income tax offices were raided and the documents burned and seven court houses were also attacked.

The destruction of police barracks as shown by the Castle communication, was on almost as great an organized scale as similar attacks last Easter, when more than sixty barracks were attacked. Most of the barracks in the present case had been abandoned and no loss of life was entailed.

Several attacks occurred in the counties of Antrim, Cork, Leitrim and Wexford, where one or two barracks were burned, including those at Cavan, Londonderry, Galway, Limerick, Meath, Donegal and Tyrone. The procedure in all cases was alike; where caretakers were in charge they were first removed, then inflammable mixtures or explosives were applied to the huts, the buildings partially or wholly destroyed.

In the revenue offices, if there were any occupants they were ordered out, bound with ropes, and then documents destroyed.

Among the court houses attacked, were those at Cashel and Ballinamore. These were completely destroyed with all documents. Armed guards were posted while the raids were proceeding, but all private property was respected.

most efficient army corps at the front. His war despatches were notable for their clearness and descriptive excellence, while his messages to the Canadian army were characterized by a loftiness of tone and a noble simplicity of utterance which attracted the admiration of all English-speaking peoples. The qualities which made him an incomparable organizer and a leader at the front fit him preeminently for the headship of a great Canadian university.

"The appointment to the principality of one who, beyond six years' experience as a school teacher, is without academic affiliations may come as a surprise to some of the friends of McGill. But the governors were supported by the sanction of high educational authorities in inviting Sir Arthur Currie to accept the position.

"He was singled out and his appointment enthusiastically urged by Sir Auckland Geddes, and the suggestion was emphatically approved by the Master of Balliol and Professor W. G. S. Adams, fellow of All Souls, Oxford, who rank with the most eminent educationalists in the British Isles. The two high academic personages united with Sir Auckland in the belief that McGill would be singularly fortunate if it succeeded in securing Sir Arthur Currie's services and there is no one, either in Canada or Great Britain, whose name they could put alongside his for consideration.
